

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to express my extreme displeasure in the motion to reclassify the internet and subvert the rules and regulations that are keeping the internet free and open. I am one of many, many people who supported Net Neutrality not once, but twice now, and I'm outraged that we are being forced to do it a third time.

Internet Service providers are, and should be treated as Common Carriers. To remove this classification and give them free reign to control what people can and can't view is unconstitutional, and a threat to our freedom of speech. It's already bad enough that they've been allowed to monopolize the market without giving them more leverage to further squeeze their customers and competition for money under arbitrary rules they set without any oversight.

Listen to the people. We WANT Net Neutrality, and it makes perfect sense. When voting on August 16th, please keep the people and their wishes in mind. Preserve Net Neutrality, and a free and open internet.

Thank you for your consideration,

Michelle Rasmussen
